

Help us find the top priority topics for research in Haematology

Cochrane is for anyone interested in using high-quality information to make health decisions. Whether you are a doctor or nurse, patient or carer, researcher or funder, Cochrane evidence provides a powerful tool to enhance your healthcare knowledge and decision making.

The Cochrane Haematology Review Group is conducting a priority setting exercise to help decide on the top priority topics for review updates and new systematic reviews.

If you are an individual who has been affected by haematological disease, a carer, health professional, guideline developer, researcher, policy maker or part of an advocacy group, we would love to hear from you!

You can contribute to the priority setting process by completing our online survey using this link: <https://bit.ly/38yYWfe>

The findings from this survey will help shape our work over the coming years and ensure that our efforts are focused on producing systematic reviews of the utmost importance to the end-users of Cochrane Haematology reviews.

Please forward this survey link to individuals or organizations who you think might be interested in providing feedback. If you have any queries, please contact Caroline Hirsch at caroline.hirsch@uk-koeln.de

Thank you for your time and participation.
